exe removal, and more. Many antivirus applications include additional features to improve performance. Anti-malware applications should include tools that will improve performance. Norton AntiVirus 10 can automatically determine whether or not you are infected with malware and send you timely warnings and help when a threat is detected. Norton AntiVirus 10 also includes a USB Flash drive that can be used for backing up and restoring data. The software works well with almost all Windows versions, including Windows XP, Vista, 7, 8, 8.1, and 10. It is also available for Mac OS X. You can use the antivirus software for free, however, the paid version is also available. It offers four variants, including Standard, which costs $49.99, Premium, which costs $79.99, Pro, which costs $119.99, and Enterprise, which costs $299.99. The Standard version offers the features found in all three other editions, plus backup, advanced malware protection, and online malware scanning for the Windows 8 and newer versions. Another feature available in the Standard version is its Advanced Threat Protection. This feature, which costs $49.99, looks for malicious software that targets the Windows operating system and other software that is linked to the operating system. If malware is discovered, it sends a warning to the user. In addition to alerts, Norton also recommends suitable actions to take to prevent or remove malware. Norton AntiVirus 10 also includes a new built-in back-up feature that is easily used. When you add a USB Flash drive to the computer, the software automatically detects it and prompts you to choose between creating a recovery drive or installing it as a new drive. Automatic Backup Norton AntiVirus 10 can automatically back up your data. The software creates an exact copy of your hard drive and sends it to a secure FTP site, where it can be accessed by a backup server. The backup server can store the copies on a file server or a local computer. The features in Norton AntiVirus 10 can include: Anti-malware: See malware in action and send a warning to the user. Detect malware. Auto-scan any new files or folders. Auto-find and delete unknown, malware-tainted files and folders. Protection from: Download files from the Internet and other Web sites. Installs software from unknown sites. Upload files or use a 82157476af
